SON, FATHER CLASH; MURDER IS SUSPECTED

Search Fails to Find Either After Shots Are Heard; Auto Is Sought. FIGHT IS OUTGROWTH OF OLD FAMILY FEUD. Mother Killed Self After Leaving Husband; Revenge May Be Motive.

Deputy sheriffs, led by Under Sheriff Richard Elliott, and a posse of farmers searched the surrounding country until late tonight in the hope of finding young Mager or Harold, his father's only son.

Following the pistol fire, Harold returned to his automobile and drove it to the rear of the barn, Adams told officers. A little while later he left the barn and found blood on the floor, but no trace of his employer.

Mrs. Mager filed suit for divorce, but admitted suicide before the case was heard. The son worked for his father on three different occasions since, but left each time because they could not agree, it was said.

FIGHT STARTS TO SUPPRESS 'TREASONABLE' COL. MITCHELL DRY ACT PLOT

Prosecution Tries to Head Off New Onslaught Upon Aviation Policies. FLYING OFFICER PLANS TO PROVE CHARGES TRUE. HAYNES AND BLAIR ARE INCLUDED IN ATTACK. Demands Good Citizens to Make Honest Effort to Enforce 18th Amendment.

Plans for Colonel Mitchell's defense hearing all the way marks of another onslaught upon the administration's aviation policies. Tonight had been worked out along these lines and awaited only the resumption of the trial tomorrow to be launched.

The prosecution is certain to oppose the defense scheme as vigorously as possible, however, and a quick showdown between the opposing counsel on the question of admissibility of evidence is likely. Colonel German foreland, trial judge, said that he would not be surprised to hear something of the sort.

Mr. Grossman, with his wife, were sitting from a friend's machine. Mrs. Grossman stepped to the curb but the old man walked around the automobile to step in front of a northbound street car.

Darrow Says Dry Act Hasn't Killed 'Appetite'

Tells Y. M. C. A. Branch He Drinks Moderately, as He Did Before Prohibition.

Clarence Darrow spoke genially and pessimistically of life in general and the race question in particular before 1,500 Negroes who packed the gymnasium of the St. Antoine street branch of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. The noted lawyer and humanitarian also expressed his view of prohibition with an ironic grin. It is:

"I used to drink before prohibition moderately. I still drink. The Volstead act hasn't seemed to have the slightest effect on my appetite."

Talks on Race Problem.

Of the race situation in Detroit, Darrow said: "I shall not discuss the case now being tried (the trial of Dr. Ossian Sweet and 16 other Negroes), but war, recently returned to from the RIF campaign. He arrived in the United States only a few days ago.

In addition to his staff, he will be accompanied here by Lieutenant R. B. Odell, who as a member of the Lafayette escadrille, saw World war service with him.

Among other honors held by the distinguished flyer is that of presidency of the Air League of France, which has 300,000 members.

On their arrival today, Captain Fonck and his party will be met by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace, and Fritsche, who will escort them to the Detroit Athletic club, where they will have their headquarters.

To Visit Air Developments.

They will go to the Packard Motor Car company's plant at 9:30 a. m. and inspect the plant of the Aircraft Development company at 11 a. m. At 12:30 p. m. they will be guests of the Detroit Aviation society at a luncheon at the D. A. C. In the afternoon they will be met by William H. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor company, and William Stout and escorted to the Ford airport. In the evening Captain Fonck will dine with Captain Rickenbacker and a group of friends.

The visitors will be guests of Roy D. Chapin, of the Hudson Motor company, and Dr. H. N. Torrey Tuesday. At some time during the day they will visit the Fisher Body plant and Selfridge field.

Captain Fonck is a graduate engineer and is connected in the capacity of engineer with the celebrated French airplane concern, the Hispano Suisse company.

It is certain that a district built to house 5,000 Negroes will prove a bit too small to accommodate the 80,000 now in Detroit. Obviously, they have to live somewhere. If they move into white neighborhoods they appreciate property values. That is true, and I confess I don't know what can be done about it.

"There will always be difficulties. If the race problem is solved, there will come along new maladjustments," he continued. "Always the man on the ground has feared the newcomer, because he did not understand him. If a white man went into the Congo he would be hated, and misunderstood. That is your lot here. You have a long, hard road to travel, an arduous one to fight, and that foe is prejudiced, which we have always had with us."

Darrow turned to the topic of slavery, and merrily took a dig at "Continued on Page Two, Column Five."

done it. He could not. But oh, my God, I'm through with him," she shrieked. "He's brought me so much trouble."

Cowen's proposals that she elope to Florida with him were just a joke, she said. They were never taken seriously.

A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 1708 Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no cruel steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Kaiser's ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Free Press who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today. the emancipation proclamation of Abraham Lincoln.

"It was a devil of an emancipation proclamation," he declared. "Did you ever read it? Well, it told the south that if it quit fighting it could re-enter the union and keep the Negroes as slaves. Lincoln was not an abolitionist of the stripe of Sumner and Garrison. He only resorted to emancipation later. It was part of his program from the first."

"Slavery," he went on, "is as old as time. The white men have been slaves, a great many of them, up until 300 years ago. In those days a man was either a ruler or a slave. Greece and Rome conquered white peoples and enslaved them."

Civilization Worth Price.

"And it may be," declared Darrow, in the first gesture of oratory he had employed, "that without slavery your race would never have had its chance for civilization. You might still be savages in Africa—" and at that you might be better off there. But still, I think that civilization is worth the price we have to pay for it, what the white man paid in his upward struggle, what you are paying today.

"I say to you, improve yourselves. Improve your calling. Get rid of tips. Get out of the class that takes tips and into the class that gives them. It won't be easy. But if you can, get your own banks, and work hard. You'll have to work hard, harder than the white man, because you're on his home grounds."

Sees Lack of Opportunity.

"You are making progress. There is no inherent difference between your capacity for growth and that of any other man, whatever his color. There is only, I regret to say, a difference in opportunity."

Darrow talked for nearly two hours, in an easy conversation manner, with frequent tests and to the accompaniment of keys that rattled in his hand. There was about him nothing of the "dignity" of the "successful man." His white string tie was hardly fashionable; his shaggy hair innocent of comb or tonsorial attention.

Now and then, apparently by accident, he would reiterate his pessimistic opinions on life and the things of life. He followed no set discourse. One minute he would ask his audience why they were Christians, in the next he would wonder aloud if they would not enjoy existence more if they were back "playing with the crocodiles and eating the breadfruit by the Congo's shores."

"Hope is the salvation of the world, inasmuch as it has any salvation," he remarked once. "I believe sometimes it should be spelled 'dope,' because that's about what it is. Life is a mystery. We don't know what we are, or why we are, or whence we came. But as long as we're here, we might as well make the best of it."

And with that gleamy peroration, alleviated a trifle by the grim twinkling eyes, Clarence Darrow, the defender of evolution at Dayton, the life-long opponent of what he regards as injustice, and incidentally, the most famous criminal lawyer in the world, stepped down from the platform.

ANCIENT FORT UNEARTHED ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Find Proves Existence of Kentucky Race Hundreds of Years Ago.

Special to Free Press and N. Y. World, Berea, Ky., Nov. 8.—Recently carried out explorations of an ancient fort, three and a half miles from here, have led to further discoveries by W. G. Burroughs, professor of geology at Berea college and assistant geologist of the Kentucky State Geological survey.

Professor Burroughs announced he found caves in the fort and thinks the prehistoric people lived in these caves during cold weather. He also has discovered graves in a number of the rock houses. In one of the graves were an axe head, spear head, flint knife, arrow head and a flint scraper. Mica was present in all the graves in such form as apparently to have been considered of great value. Charcoal also was found.

Further explorations will be made, Burroughs asserted. The old fort's existence has been known many years, but Burroughs has made the first extensive explorations and study. The fort includes the entire top of a mountain covering an area of about 320 acres. The flat top is 550 feet vertically above the valley.
